

Beware of Hotel Fraud and Scams

Unfortunately, many fraudulent companies or hotel resellers always try to contact attendees posing as affiliated companies with IPSA, offering deals and discounts on hotels. We strongly recommend that you book only through our sole official agency, bnetwork.

How Does Hotel Fraud Work?

You may receive a few months prior the event some emails from agents or resellers with discounts and/or hotel offers. Some companies often imitate IPSA's name in their address to be seen as legitimate providers. We strongly recommend you to only trust our agent and avoid those housing scammers.

For instance, they might ask for payment from you to receive discounts. If you choose to work with those unofficial vendors, we cannot assure you that those reservations have been made with selected hotels. You might realize you just lost money you won't be able to get back.

Please make your hotel reservations directly through the bnetwork portal, located at the top of the page or by clicking on the reservation link here.

If you have any questions about your trip, please contact ipsa.accommodation@bnetwork.com

Avoid fraud

- Book through our official agency, bnetwork. bnetwork is a recognized travel agency that works with the world's largest event organizers.
- Do not pay attention even if IPSA's name and/or logo on unofficial providers' websites. The only approved platform and partner of the IPSA conference authorized to use this content is the bnetwork agency.
- If you choose another travel agent, make sure to check their reputation.
