

2021 INTERNATIONAL POSTDOCTORAL PROGRAM CEBRAP

CHARACTERISTICS AND OBJECTIVES

CEBRAP's International Postdoctoral Program (IPP) is aimed at doctors with a PhD in anthropology, political science, demography, law, economics, philosophy, history, and sociology, and whose research interests are aligned with topics studied by CEBRAP's research groups - <https://cebrap.org.br/nucleos/>

The program is meant to complement the training of doctors by providing them with an interdisciplinary experience, enabling them to tackle research topics beyond the boundaries of the fields in which they have been trained. The program also expects that an international group of doctors will allow for a comparative framework in researched topics. As a result, CEBRAP hopes to provide scholars with a broader view of the major issues in our contemporary societies.

The post-doctoral program began in 2016 and draws on a successful previous experience by CEBRAP, the Cadre Training Program (1986-2002), later changed into the Postdoctoral Program (2003-2007), in which 116 young researchers took part. The large number of both programs' researchers having achieved prominent positions in Brazilian universities, and in various government levels, can attest to their success.

IPP is in its fourth class (2017, 2018, 2019, 2020). It currently has 24 postdoctoral researchers conducting research in Brazil or at international institutions. To learn more about their work in progress, we invite you to visit the program's website: <https://cebrap.org.br/ipp/>

HOW THE PROGRAM WORKS

The IPP will select a group of up to 10 doctors from different nationalities, graduated in Brazil or abroad.

Beginning on August 2021, the program lasts for at least one year with option of a stay at a foreign institution (see below for a description of partner institutions with which we have established exchange agreements) funded by postdocs own scholarships. As an option, the researcher can extend the program up to two years, prolonging the activities at Cebrap.

The post-doctoral program is grounded on research activity. Postdoctoral researchers might develop their project under the supervision of CEBRAP senior researchers (PhDs for over 10 years) and can become part of their research teams, choosing topics related to ongoing researches in the institution (see below for a list of available supervisors and topics). In that case, the research proposal of the candidate will also be evaluated by a supervisor. Partner foreign institutions will also appoint a supervisor when receiving the program's postdocs.

Postdoctoral researchers will participate in three specific and regular activities:

1. Weekly research seminar (Thursdays) in which postdocs will successively present their initial project, partial results, and a final written product (article, book chapter, book). This seminar aims at following the project development in its several stages: object definition, theoretical approach, research design, research strategies, partial and final results;
2. Once-a-year thematic seminar (August) with the participation of CEBRAP researchers as well as national and international guests;
3. Methodological workshops tailor-made to fit postdocs interests;

4. Mid-term and final conferences where the results of their research work while at the IPP will be publicly presented.

Other obligations for postdocs include:

- a. Active participation in CEBRAP's collective activities (seminars and debates) as well as in their affiliated research group, if it is the case;
- b. Submission for publication of an article or book at the end of the program;
- c. Presentation at IPP conference of their on-going research by the end of the first year and of their final results when they end the program.

After the period at CEBRAP the researcher can be hosted by one of our partners institutions for 3 months without tuition fees. A supervisor to each post-doc researcher will be appointed by the institution.

EVALUATION

The postdoctoral researchers will have their final product (book or article) evaluated by the IPP Academic Committee.

Participants that meet the programs requirements will receive an achievement certificate.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGE OF THE PROGRAM: English

CORONAVIRUS PANDEMIC

The uncertainty of these times adds a special challenge for us. As we recognize the importance to pursuit the goals of the program without interruption and are aligned with the recommendations from the World Health Organization (WHO), which safeguards the wellbeing of our community, it will be held online during the 1st semester of 2021. Up-to-date information about our remote working can be found in our website or by e-mail - postdoc@CEBRAP.org.br

APPLICATION

Required documentation (in English, Portuguese or Spanish):

1. Application form (model at <https://cebrap.org.br/ipp/>);
2. Research project (up to 20 pages, including an initial half-page summary);
3. Curriculum vitae (up to 4 pages);
4. Letter stating the reasons for the candidate's interest in the program (up to 2 pages);
5. Article or paper, published or unpublished, that the candidate considers the best example of his/her academic production;
6. PhD diploma (or equivalent);
7. 2 (two) recommendation letters to be sent directly to our email - postdoc@CEBRAP.org.br;
8. Proof of English proficiency for fluent reading and speaking: TOEFL or equivalent - score over 71, or a statement of advanced knowledge of English, or a description of a significant previous international experience;
9. Updated personal profile in the websites academia.edu and research gate

Documents should be sent to the email postdoc@CEBRAP.org.br, until March 1st, 2021.

Application Fee:

R$ 150,00, paid through PayPal or bank deposit.

For Paypal, access www.paypal.com and send the payment to: cebrap@cebrap.org.br

Bank transfers should be sent to:
Banco do Brasil
Agência 0300-X
Conta 10.8440-2
CNPJ: 62.579.164/0001-72
Centro Brasileiro de Análise e Planejamento

Please send the transfer proof to postdoc@CEBRAP.org.br and financeiro@cebrap.org.br

SELECTION

Class: up to 10 doctors per year

Selection method:

Partner institutions' candidates will be selected by them - up to 2 postdocs per year per institution.

All other candidates will submit to the following procedures:

First phase (until March 28th, 2021): evaluation of the submitted documentation and research project evaluation;

Second phase if necessary (until April 16th, 2021): personal or skype interview with the potential supervisor.

Results will be announced up to April 30th, 2021 via email. Approved postdoctoral researchers will receive a formal acceptance letter.

Deadline for enrollment fee: May 28th, 2021.

Program starts on August 9th, 2021.

AFFIRMATIVE ACTION

Two positions will be fulfilled with candidates that declare themselves blacks or descendants of indigenous groups. In order to apply for these positions, candidate must send the auto declaration form (see form attached).

FUNDING

The program will be funded by CEBRAP and there will be no monthly charges to postdoctoral researchers. The sole requirement is that postdocs pay the inscription fee of R$ 150,00 and the enrollment fee of R$ 1.275,00. No enrollment fee will be required of candidates from partner institutions and for those chosen through affirmative action.

Funding for postdocs living abroad should be provided through their own resources, through their institutions of origin, or through international funding institutions with official support from CEBRAP.

Postdoctoral researchers living in Brazil, whether Brazilian or foreigner, may resort to their own resources or apply for a national scholarship, with official support from CEBRAP and a supervisor.

Postdoctoral researchers funded by FAPESP (or other funding institution) must meet the rules and requirements of the funding institution as well as the program's norms. For those interested in a scholarship at FAPESP we highly recommend to read the rules at FAPESP's website - <https://fapesp.br/en>

PROGRAM DIRECTORS

Coordinator: Maria Herminia Tavares de Almeida

Co-coordinator: Vera Schattan Ruas Pereira Coelho

Academic Committee: Cebrap's Academic Director, one senior Cebrap's researcher and two researchers of IPP international partners institutions.

PARTNER INSTITUTIONS

- Freie Universität Berlin (Germany)
- Käte Hamburger Kolleg/ Centre for Global Cooperation Research (Germany)
- Institute for Development and Peace (University Duisburg Essen, Germany)
- Princeton University (EUA)
- University of Bath (UK)
- CRBC/Mondes américains – EHESS
- U Cambridge - Institute for Latin American Studies (UK)
- Institute of Development Studies –IDS (UK)
- Brown University (EUA)

SUPERVISORS

Available supervisors will vary with each annual call, but they will always be senior CEBRAP researchers with ten or more years of PhD.

Adrián Gurza Lavalle

Adrián Gurza Lavalle is a professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of São Paulo (FFLCH-USP). He is a member of the Management Committee for the Centre for the Future State - University of Sussex.

Research areas: associativism and civil society; participative institutions and participation; democratic theory and democratic innovation; representation theories.

Alexandre de Freitas Barbosa

Alexandre de Freitas Barbosa is an Economist with a Masters in Economic History from USP (1997) and a PhD in Applied Economics from UNICAMP (2003). Between 2007 and 2009, he developed his postdoctoral research at CEM/CEBRAP on labor market and social inequalities in Brazil. He teaches Economic History and Brazilian Economics at IEB/USP since 2009 and is currently participating in the Director's Board of ABET (Brazilian Association for Labor Studies).

Research areas: economic and social development in Brazil; international insertion of the Brazilian economy; Brazilian foreign policy and South-South cooperation; Brazil and the BRICS; effects of China's Ascension on Brazil, Brazil-Africa relations.

Alvaro Comin

Professor de Sociologia da USP, onde se formou em História e defendeu mestrado e doutorado em Sociologia. Tem vários estudos publicados sobre mercado de trabalho e desenvolvimento urbano. É co-autor, entre outras obras, dos livros Os Cavaleiros do Antiapocalipse: trabalho e política na indústria automobilística, em parceria com Francisco de Oliveira (2000) e Caminhos para o Centro: estratégias de desenvolvimento para a área central de São Paulo (2004).

Angela Alonso

Angela Alonso is a professor in the Department of Sociology at the University of São Paulo. She is a researcher at CEBRAP and holds a Research Productivity scholarship from CNPq. She holds a Masters (1995) and a PhD (2000) in Sociology from the University of São Paulo and a Post-Doctorate from Yale University (2009-2010). She was a researcher at the Development Research Centre on Citizenship (University of Sussex) between 2000 and 2010 and a Fellow at Guggenheim Foundation between 2009 and 2010. She is the author of the book Idéias em Movimento: a Geração 1870 na Crise do Brasil-Império (Ideas in Motion: the 1870 Generation in the Brazil-Empire Crisis. Paz & Terra Publishing/Anpocs. 2002; winner of the 2000 CNPq-Anpocs award for best PhD in Social Sciences); and Joaquim Nabuco: os salões e as ruas (Joaquim Nabuco: the salons and the streets (Companhia das letras, 2007; nominated for the Jabuti literary award and the Brazil-Portugal Telecom award).

Research areas: culture and political action; social and cultural movements; slavery abolition and post-abolition.

Fernando Limongi

Fernando Limongi holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Chicago (USA). He is a Coordinator for the Politics and Society thematic area at CEBRAP and Titular Professor in the Department of Political Science, University of São Paulo.

Research areas: comparative politics; political institutions; elections; executive-legislative relations.

John Sydenstricker Neto

John Sydenstricker Neto holds a PhD in Sociology from Cornell University. John headed and participated in several projects in the field of environmental indicators, particularly in dimensions associated with land use and occupation.

Research areas: development; inequality and the environment; environmental territories and conflicts.

Márcia Lima

Márcia Lima graduated in Social Sciences from the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro (1992). She holds a Masters in Sociology from the Brazilian Society of Education – SBI/IUPERJ (1994) and a PhD in Sociology from the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro (2001). She is currently a Professor of Sociology at the University of São Paulo. She is an Associate Researcher at the Center for Metropolitan Studies (CEM), a program bringing together the University of São Paulo, the Brazilian Center for Analysis and Planning, and the SEADE Foundation. She is also a researcher at the National Institute for Metropolitan Studies (CNPq Program/MCT).

Research areas: racial inequalities and race relations with emphasis on gender and race studies; inequality and social stratification with emphasis on labor market studies.

Marcos Nobre

Marcos Nobre is a Professor in the Department of Philosophy- Unicamp and a researcher at CEBRAP and CNPq. He graduated in Social Sciences at USP, where he also earned a Masters and a PhD in Philosophy. He conducted his postdoctoral studies at the Johann Wolfgang Goethe

University, Frankfurt in Main, Germany. He regularly comments on politics in different Medias.

Research areas: critical theory; Brazilian politics; German idealism.

Miriam Dolhnikoff

Miriam Dolhnikoff holds PhD in History from FFLCH-USP. She is a Professor in the Department of History at FFLCH-USP.

Research Area: Brazil's political history in the nineteenth century.

Maria Hermínia Tavares de Almeida

Maria Hermínia Tavares de Almeida is senior researcher at CEBRAP and retired titular professor from the Department of Political Science at FFLCH-USP and from the International Relations Institute, working in the International Relations and Political Science Postgraduate Programs at USP. She graduated in Social Sciences from the University of São Paulo (1969), holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of São Paulo (1979) and a post-doctorate from the University of California, Berkeley (1984). Among her publications is the book Crise econômica e interesses organizados (Economic crisis and organized interests - EDUSP) and the article "Privatization: reform through negotiation." She was a director of the International Relations Institute at USP (2010-2013). She was a visiting researcher in the Institute of Latin American Studies at London University (1992), Tinker Visiting Professor in Stanford University (1996), visiting professor in the Latin America Doctoral Program at the Ortega y Gasset Institute (2000, 2001 and 2002), visiting Professor in the Department of Political Science at Université de Montréal (2006), and a visiting researcher in the King's College Institute Brazil, University of London (2012). She participated in the Executive Committee of the Latin American Studies Association (2001-2004), the Executive Committee of the International Political Science Association (2006-2009), and was president of the Brazilian Association of Political Science (2004-2008) and the Latin American Studies Association (2010 -2012). She is currently a member of the Brazil Institute Advisory Board and the Latin American Program at the Woodrow Wilson Center for Scholars (Washington), the Council of Eminent Persons of the World Bank Chief Economist, and the Academic Commission of the European Union-Latin America and the Caribbean Foundation (EU-LAC Foundation). She was awarded by the president with the National Order of Scientific Merit, in the Comendador category (2006) and received the Academic Excellence Award in Political Science from ANPOCS (2013).

Research areas: public policy; public opinion and foreign policy.

Nadya Araujo Guimarães

Nadya Araujo Guimarães holds a PhD in Sociology from the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, a Post-doctorate from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She is a Professor in the Department of Sociology at USP.

Research areas: economic change; technical-organizational restructuring of firms and workers' trajectories; gender and racial-ethnic inequalities in the labor market and workplace; unemployment, job search and intermediation mechanisms of occupational opportunities; the challenges in theorizing new employment relationships.

Paula Montero

Paula Montero holds a BA in Psychology from the University René Descartes Sorbonne and a BA in Social Sciences from Université Paris VII – Vincennes. She holds a Masters in Social Anthropology from Université Paris VII and a PhD in Anthropology from the University of São Paulo.

She presided CEBRAP between 2011-2015, where she is a coordinator of the Culture and Public Space Thematic Area. She is an associate-coordinator of the Research Foundation of the State of São Paulo and Titular Professor in the Anthropology department at the University of São Paulo.

Research areas: anthropology; political anthropology; religions and the public sphere.

Ronaldo de Almeida

Ronaldo de Almeida holds a BA in Social Sciences, a Masters in Social Anthropology from Unicamp, and a PhD in Social Anthropology from USP. He recently completed his Post-Doctorate at the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales in Paris. He is currently an associate professor in the Department of Anthropology at Unicamp, coordinator at PGAS-Unicamp, and researcher at the Brazilian Center for Analysis and Planning.

Research areas: religion; urban violence.

Sérgio Costa

Sérgio Costa graduated in Economics from the Federal University of Minas Gerais (1985). He holds a Masters in Sociology from the Federal University of Minas Gerais (1991) as well as a PhD (1996) and a full professorship in Sociology from the Free University of Berlin, Germany. He is a titular professor of sociology of the Free University of Berlin and researcher at CEBRAP.

He was an associate professor at the Federal University of Santa Catarina (1997-1999), assistant Professor in the Free University of Berlin (2000-2005), and visiting Professor in the University of Flensburg, Germany (2006-2007).

Research areas: social inequality; law and ethnicity; racism and anti-racism; postcolonial theories.

Vera Schattan P. Coelho

Vera Schattan P. Coelho holds a PhD in Social Sciences from the State University of Campinas (1996). She coordinates the Citizenship and Development Research Center at CEBRAP. She was a visiting researcher at the Torquato di Tella University (Argentina, 2000), at the Institute for Development Studies/University of Sussex (England, 2004), and at the Kennedy School/Harvard University (USA, 2009).

Research areas: population and public policies; citizenship, health and development.

Racial-Ethnic Declaration Form

I (name/ national ID card or passport number) declare, for the specific purposes of applying to the Cebrap International Postdoc Program, that I'm entitled to apply to the position reserved to blacks and descendants of indigenous groups.

(Date, place)

(Signature)
