Words of Welcome

In the modern world, where the network of mutual dependencies is thickening, social and political processes are resonating more widely, their range is expanding and scale is growing. Conducting analyses in political science outside the international context is becoming unfeasible. In order to fully comprehend global processes, cooperation across state borders and international exchange of ideas are indispensable.

This is the role of the World Congresses of Political Science.

For the first time since the 1979 World Congress in Moscow, IPSA will hold its Congress in an East European state. I am proud that outstanding political scientists from all over the world have selected Poznań as the venue of their sessions. This is a great distinction for Poznań as a city and an academic center, which is among the best in Poland and – I am convinced – is becoming increasingly important in Europe.

The main theme of the Congress shows that modern political science is keeping its eye on the ball, watching social transformations and global processes. Politics in the modern world are actually the “politics in the world of inequality.” You are going to analyze issues that are essential for global order.

Inequalities are mounting around the world today. They are growing in many dimensions. Societies are stratifying inside their nation-states. This is accompanied by widening gaps between countries. Differences in the development of different areas of the globe are distinctly observable.

At the same time, the citizens of different countries around the world are increasingly demanding that their rights be recognized and political representation ensured. Social movements that emphasize their identity are growing in strength. Inequality cannot be brought down to the distribution of goods. The need for recognition and acceptance is assuming a political dimension the way it has never done before.

Inequalities pose one of the most serious challenges to the international order, and their outcomes are unimaginable. The complex matter of both their causes and effects calls for international consideration. I am glad that the World Congress of Political Science will encourage debates on this crucial issue.

I am convinced that the circle of such outstanding scholars will be able to answer at least some of the questions posed by modern political science and, equally importantly, to ask new ones.

I wish you fruitful and inspiring sessions. I believe that your stay in Poznań will allow you to establish valuable international academic relations and result in numerous joint research projects. I hope that the Congress will allow political science to take a few steps forward.

Jarosław Gowin,
Vice-President of the Council of Ministers,
Minister of Science and Higher Education

I would like to extend a warm welcome to all those participating in the 24th World Congress of Political Science. It gives me great joy and gratitude to receive you in the city of Poznań to host such an important event and it is a great honour for us to have so many outstanding representatives of the world of science simultaneously staying in our city for several days.

Poznań, a metropolis in the western part of Poland, is one of the most important academic, scientific and cultural centres in the country. We are an open and hospitable city. We host some of the greatest international trade fairs in this part of Europe, and Poznań itself is associated with entrepreneurship and business. We are a city that conducts dialogue with its inhabitants, so that we can hear them out and build a better future on the basis of their opinions.

The contemporary world gives us an abundance of topics to discuss. Many of the problems are global, therefore, in order to cope with the challenges we face, we need to unite and start speaking with one voice. When should we discuss such various topics, if not during the Congress, which is not only an opportunity for representatives of various political sciences to meet, but also an opportunity to hear and confront views from all over the world?

I would like to congratulate and thank the organisers of the event, who made a great effort to ensure the highest standard of the World Congress of Political Science. I wish you all fruitful debates, many valuable conclusions and a great time in Poznań.

Jacek Jaśkowiak
Mayor of the City of Poznań

Words of Welcome

Welcome to the 24th World Congress of the International Political Science Association (IPSA) in Poznań, Poland. The theme of this year's World Congress is "Politics in a World of Inequality."

Inequality on our globe presents challenges to political scientists. While efforts have been made to reduce inequality in our societies, its presence is still being felt in various aspects on our globe, as it persists between nations as well as within them, including the advanced democracies. Political scientists face the challenging yet necessary responsibility to conduct research on inequality, which is why I am extremely enthused by the scholarly debates that will take place during the various panels or sessions of the World Congress.

The Executive Committee (EC) of IPSA had initially decided to hold the 24th World Congress in Istanbul, Turkey, chosen as the venue six years ago. Since then, the Local Organization Committee (LOC) in Istanbul as well as the Turkish Political Science Association (TPSA) had been working hard to prepare for the World Congress. However, recent tragic events forced us to reconsider and, after much deliberation and consultation, IPSA's Executive Committee reached the difficult decision to relocate the venue of the 24th World Congress to Poznań, Poland for security reasons. As President of IPSA, I felt it is my obligation to ensure the safety of all IPSA participants. With great appreciation for their efforts, we asked the Turkish LOC and the TPSA to understand the reasons for our decision. It remains IPSA's firm hope that we can hold a future World Congress in Istanbul.

Although the decision to relocate was painful and disappointing for all involved, particularly for our Turkish colleagues, we are at the same time very proud to present the World Congress here in Poznań. The IPSA Secretariat in Montréal worked diligently to organize a thorough bidding process to determine a new venue for the 24th World Congress, and Poznań's candidacy proved to be outstanding, with the enthusiastic support of the Polish Political Science Association, which set up a new LOC to help organize this World Congress, under the leadership of Roman Bäcker and Teresa Sasinska-Klas.

Holding the IPSA World Congress in Poland also has a special symbolic meaning, as Poland is situated at the crossroads between East and West, thus carrying forward IPSA's goal to open up to the non-Western world. We congratulate the efforts and enthusiasm of the Polish Political Science Association to maintain this goal.

Political scientists from all over the world will contribute to debates around the theme of inequality at the 24th World Congress. IPSA thereby hopes to foster a global conversation that advances our knowledge and understanding of these issues. We are pleased to have you among us.

We owe a debt of gratitude to those who made this World Congress possible. The IPSA Program Committee — and Program Co-Chairs Dianne Pinderhughes and Marian Sawyer — did an excellent job of organizing this event. Thanks also to the Polish Political Science Association, and the entire LOC for their remarkable efforts. IPSA Secretary-General Guy Lachapelle and Executive Director Andrea Cestaro also deserve our heartfelt thanks for their continued work. The members of the IPSA Secretariat worked extremely hard to make this event a success: Yannick Saint-Germain, Roksolana Bobyk, Mathieu St-Laurent, Claude Berlinguette, Haluk Dag, Desiree Hostettler, Jessica Tavares, Eric Grève, and Fernand Thériault. Without their dedication, this World Congress would not have been possible.

As President of IPSA, and on behalf of all those who have worked to make this event exciting and enriching, I thank you for joining us, and wish you a most satisfying World Congress!

Words of Welcome

Welcome to the 24th World Congress of Political Science, taking place in the historic city of Poznań. Poznań is a university town, with around a quarter of its population being students. Its impressive Congress Centre was the site of the 2008 UN Climate Change Conference.

We are pleased to have worked on this 24th Congress, and to have shepherded it from its initially scheduled location in Istanbul, to its present site, where it will be the largest IPSA Congress ever held, with the exception of the Madrid Congress in 2012.

We developed the Congress theme, 'Politics in a World of Inequality' in consultation with the Program Committee, Executive Committee and Local Organising Committee. The aim was to refocus attention on the distributional issues summarised by Harold Lasswell as 'Who gets what, when, how'. Participants from all over the world have responded enthusiastically to the challenge of showing how the different subfields of political science can help us understand the causes and consequences of inequality and how political inequality can be addressed.

We had an overwhelming response to our call for panels and papers, receiving 1372 panel and 6844 paper proposals in all. Reviewing all these proposals was a mammoth task for our Main Theme and Research Committee chairs. There are many exciting panels dealing with a wide range of inequalities in both global and local contexts as well as the strengths and weaknesses of political science as a discipline in recognising and addressing such inequalities. Our first plenary speaker, Richard Wilkinson, will launch the theme of the Congress with an inspiring address on inequality as 'the enemy between us'.

In February 2016 the IPSA Executive made the decision to relocate the 24th World Congress, due to security concerns in Istanbul. This was a very hard decision, given all the work already undertaken by our Turkish colleagues in preparing for the Congress. It required a new bid process, leading to the choice on 23 March of Poznań as the new location for the Congress. This relocation only a few months before the Congress meant a huge amount of additional work for the IPSA Secretariat and for session chairs, as well as the creation of a new Polish Local Organising Committee headed by Roman Bäcker and Tadeusz Wallas and an accelerated call for papers. Our Polish colleagues put their hearts and souls into making the Congress a magnet for political science in the region as well as shining light on political developments in Central and Eastern Europe.

The leaders of IPSA's Congress team were Yannick Saint-Germain (Event Project Manager) and Roksolana Bobyk (World Congress and Event Coordinator). Haluk Dag, Jessica Tavares and Désirée Hostettler also served in a variety of roles as World Congress Assistants. Thanks to their enormous dedication and professionalism this unprecedented Congress relocation took place almost without a hitch.

If you have any questions, comments or suggestions, please contact either one of us before, during or after the World Congress. Your input and comments concerning previous Congresses were highly appreciated as they helped us to lay the groundwork for this meeting in Poznań. We hope this year's event meets, and even exceeds your expectations.

Dianne Pinderhughes and Marian Sawyer
Program Chairs

Who would have said, six months ago, that Poland would play host to the 24th World Congress of Political Science? The unfortunate events that transpired in Turkey obliged us, on a daily basis, to reassess what would be the best place to ensure the security of participants while offering them an environment conducive to true scientific exchange. We can only thank the members of the Polish Political Science Association, who agreed to rise to the challenge of hosting the event in such a short time frame. I also hasten to thank the Turkish Political Science Association for their commitment to making the 24th World Congress a memorable event. Since Moscow in 1979, this is the second time IPSA stages a congress event in Eastern Europe, and we're very pleased to mark our return and to pursue our mission to promote the advancement of political science in all parts of the world, by establishing scientific networks connecting East and West, and North and South.

The World Congress of Political Science in Poznań will welcome some 3,000 political scientists from more than 99 countries. These participants are destined to become the new tercüman during this week-long event. Their first order of business will be to better understand our rapidly changing world and above all explore the new forms of inequality emerging in the early blush of the 21st century. In order to do so, the "new" political scientist must be a sociologist, anthropologist, mathematician and diplomat at one and the same time. Multidisciplinary is the watchword, therefore.

As far back as the New France period, many young French people went to live among aboriginal peoples in order to better understand their language and customs. The French who integrated into aboriginal cultures were referred to as "truchements" (intermediaries) or interpreters.¹ Such is the challenge that lies before us today as political scientists, that of fostering a dialogue between researchers from the four corners of the world so that we can better interpret the myriad changes occurring within our societies.

The choice of the university city of Poznań was first and foremost the result of a stated desire on the part of the Polish Political Science Association to receive our community of researchers. For our association, this invitation also provided an opportunity to speak directly to our colleagues from Eastern Europe with the objective of developing new research projects and achieving a better understanding of all the changes taking place within Polish and European political life.

Today, being an internationalist is certainly less perilous than it was during the time of the Crusades, the road travelled less daunting thanks to that metal steed that allows us to span the world's oceans more rapidly. But it is always in a spirit of a quest and from a perspective of sharing the fruits of our research that we gather today in Poland. My wish is that Poznań 2016 will serve as an opportune moment for reflection on the future of our discipline as well as till the soil for productive new collaborations.

Enjoy the Congress!

Guy Lachapelle, Secretary General of IPSA

1. David Hackett Fischer, Champlain's Dream, New York, Simon & Schuster, 2008.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

It is a great pleasure to welcome all the participants of the 24th World Congress of Political Science to Poznań, a city that is unique in terms of history, economy, tourism, as well as academia. There are over a dozen higher education institutions in Poznań, including eight in the public sector. Every fifth inhabitant of our city is a student. With over 40,000 students, Adam Mickiewicz University is the oldest and biggest university, and one of its liveliest centers is the Faculty of Political Science and Journalism on behalf of which I would like to welcome you as its Dean. I am honored to host you as the co-chair of the Local Organizing Committee and co-organizer of the Local Sessions.

The main theme for this year's Congress is the highly important and topical issue of inequality in the modern world. Inequalities are among the reasons for numerous global, regional and local phenomena and processes whose outcomes affect big and small social groups, as well as each of us individually. Uneven distribution of income and access to a variety of goods raises concerns about the future, and may fuel the development of extremist political movements. If they gain in importance, the old threats to different dimensions of security may be exacerbated and new threats may emerge. Therefore, I believe that the subject of our Congress is extremely well chosen, and I am convinced that in the course of its sessions we will be able to demonstrate old and new sources of inequalities, assess their strength and examine their nature and specificity. Another important task will concern the attempt to determine the political science forecasts of development that will occur in the circumstances of persistent and even increasing divergences in the world, and in individual states.

It is my profound conviction that the Congress' extensive agenda, including the Main Theme Sessions, Congress Sessions, Special Sessions and Research Committee Sessions, representing all the sub-disciplines of political science, as well as the Local Sessions will address the expectations of all attendees and guests. While preparing the Congress, the Local Committee has done its best to meet the highest standards with regards to on-site conditions so that Congress participants can share and present the results of their research.

I wish fruitful proceedings to everybody involved in academic reflection on these matters, and I hope that the Congress will not only provide the opportunity to present and discuss research results, but that it will also become a place where new, international acquaintances will be made, facilitating cooperation among researchers from all over the world.

I would also like to take this opportunity to invite you to visit the Faculty of Political Science and Journalism, located on the Morasko Campus, one of the most modern academic campuses in Poland. It will be a great pleasure for us to host you during the Local Sessions and the evening event.

I wish everybody successful sessions, a pleasant stay in Poznań and a rewarding participation in the Congress.

Prof. Tadeusz Wallas
Local Organizing Committee (LOC) Co-chair

Dean of the Faculty of Political Science and Journalism
Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań
First Vice President of the Polish Political Science Association

I have a dream of inviting the most prominent political scientists in the world to Poland for a World Congress. Dreams do come true, and it sometimes happens unexpectedly. A few years ago, nobody would have imagined that the sharply reduced level of security in the world and the region, and political unpredictability; including the limited extent of academic freedom, would be so immense that it would be necessary to relocate the 24th World Congress from Istanbul to Poznań.

I am tremendously grateful to our friends from the Turkish Political Science Association for the many years of hard work put into the preparation of the 24th World Congress. We are proud that we can benefit from their experience and continue their work.

Although the Congress' theme deals with the growing inequalities in the political world, debates will surely transcend that topic. Since February 2014, the strength of the bifurcation vector of the international order intensifies. The rapid rise of social processes contributes to the increasing levels of instability in political systems. In many countries, the protest parties with populist programs have risen to power and received above-average electoral support. One of the possible grounds of the research is to treat these processes as external expressions of tensions between the processes of corporate globalization and self-isolationism of counter-acclimation national communities. There are plenty of examples of these types of fields of research and new intellectual challenges which accompany them.

Undoubtedly, it is also necessary to rethink our social role – as researchers and analysts of social reality – if it runs counter to the world of politics. We lack the comfort of physicists whose research subjects are not subjective. Therefore, as it is necessary to follow the general principles of treating politicians the same way as criminologists treat criminals, and biologists white mice, it is also necessary to rethink and propose in what situations political scientists and the whole political science environment should also take political roles.

The research work is based on a never-ending pursuit of the truth. The above examples of problems, like many others, cannot be fully resolved during the 24th World Congress in Poznań. However, it is essential to constantly ask questions and seek more relevant answers. I am sure that this 24th IPSA World Congress in Poznań will play an important part in this endless history of studying the political world.

I wish you the best of luck in the debates and endless discussions on the important topics related to the world of politics.

The International Political Science Association (IPSA) was founded in Paris in 1949 under the aegis of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO) to promote the development of political science throughout the world. As an international scholarly association, IPSA has a mission to:

- support the development of political science in all parts of the world, building academic networks linking East and West, North and South;
- create an inclusive and global political science community by ensuring a balanced representation along the lines of region, gender and experience in all of its activities;
- promote collaboration between scholars in emerging and established democracies and to support the academic freedoms needed for the social sciences to flourish;
- ensure that political scientists are strongly positioned to make a valuable contribution to the quality of public deliberation and decision-making and to our understanding of an increasingly interconnected political world;
- support the role of political science in empowering men and women to participate more effectively in political life.

Institutional Relationships

IPSA is a member of the International Social Science Council (ISSC) and of the Global Development Network (GDN) and has a consultative status with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations (ECOSOC) and with UNESCO. It is also affiliated with the United Nations Department of Public Information - Non Governmental Organizations (DPI/NGO) and the Organisation internationale de la Francophonie (OIF). IPSA also supports the development the Réseau des associations francophones de science politique.

IPSA's main activities

Research

IPSA has 49 active research committees covering all facets of political science. Starting with one in 1970, IPSA Research Committees are now a vast worldwide research network where all interested individuals are welcome to contribute. Research committees frequently publish their work and organize their own conferences. They each present a minimum of two panels at IPSA World Congresses, but in most cases many more. Joint panels between two or more RCs are strongly encouraged.

REVUE FRANÇAISE DE SCIENCE POLITIQUE

The journal of the Fondation nationale des sciences politiques and the Association française de science politique

— AVAILABLE IN ENGLISH —

The Revue française de science politique constitutes a primary scholarly reference point in political science, both in France and across the world. It publishes original research articles in all areas of the discipline, as well as critical readings, review articles, short book reviews, and survey articles on specific topics which synthesise existing scholarship.

More than one hundred English full-text articles of the Revue française de science politique are available on Cairn-International and Jstor.

« Thanks to this excellent English edition, the RFSP is giving non-French speakers a wonderful opportunity to get acquainted with more of one of the most dynamic and original political science traditions in the world. With this exciting new journal, colleagues around the world can expect some greatly innovative and insightful pieces in every issue for years to come, » Michael Bruter, Reader in Political Science and European Politics: Department of Government, London School of Economics and Political Science.

« This is an historic moment for the RFSP. The new English language edition provides an unprecedented entrée to political scientists across the globe into French Political Science and the study of French Politics and in doing so, contributes to an ever-increasing and crucial dialog between political scientists on both sides of the Atlantic, » Amy G. Mazur, Professor in the Department of Political Science at Washington State University.

*Citizens in Europe:
Essays on Democracy,
Constitutionalism and European Integration*
Claus Offe
Ulrich K. Preuß

Interdisciplinary essays by a constitutionalist and a political sociologist examining how fragmented societies can be held together by constitutional arrangements providing for bonds of democratic citizenship. The authors address moral and institutional prerequisites on which the deepening of European integration depends. The desirability of such deepening is now contested, with some states' membership, and EU treaty compliance, at stake.

RRP £65 / €89

*People, States & Fear: An Agenda for International Security
Studies in the Post-Cold War Era*
Barry Buzan

This acclaimed book examines how states and societies pursue freedom from threat where competitive relations are inescapable across the political, economic, military, societal and environmental landscapes. Buzan focuses on the interplay of threats and vulnerabilities, and the consequences of overemphasising one over the other. In 2007 the author added new introduction placing this classic text in a current context. This landmark book remains as vital today as when it was first published.

Institutional Innovation and the Steering of Conflicts in Latin America
Jorge Gordin
Lucio Renno (Eds)

Opening a Pandora's box of conflict management, this book asks: To what degree do Latin American political contexts create institutions that deal with conflict in a feasible, legitimate way? How can institutional architects exploit such spaces to manage conflict innovatively? In light of the socioeconomic challenges in most of Latin America, institutional designers are confronted with the fact that nothing inherent in institutions guarantees that conflict is processed in ways that tackle distributive and ethnic inequalities.

Rainer Eisfeld's book highlights the merits of socio-historical research into topics infrequently covered by mainstream political science. Directing attention to the need for carefully scrutinizing the convenient "truths" of established – post-Nazi, post-Communist – political narratives, its chapters encourage reflection of the discipline's history and state of the art.

Debate among politicians and academics alike vacillates as to whether the euro is the crowning achievement of a half-century of European integration efforts, or now constitutes a force that threatens to drive European Union member states apart. This book introduces both the political and economic forces at play in the eurozone crisis that have shaped this debate and changed the face of European integration.

of International Studies

ISSN 2196-6923
ISSN Online 2196-7415
Volume 3, 2016
Published three times a year
April – August – November
(incl. one special issue)
Language: English

ERIS seeks to be a journal to which those who wish to know what is happening in 'European' International Relations can turn. It aims to achieve this goal by an extensive review section of monographs published in European languages and review articles of the literature on substantive themes or significant developments in different European academic communities. Its other principal goal is to publish original articles and from time to time translations of existing major articles not readily available in English.
